

NAME DELEGATES FOR CONVENTION

Six Men Who Will Go to Chicago Are Selected by Republicans.

FOR ROOSEVELT AND TAFT.

But the Latter Is to Be Considered Only If the Party Will Resolves to Run.

DELEGATES TO NATIONAL CONVENTION.

Senator Reed Smoot, Utah county.
 Senator George Sutherland, Salt Lake county.
 Congressman Joseph Howell, Cache county.
 C. E. Looze, national committeeman, Utah county.
 Dr. C. M. Wilson, Summit county.
 W. D. Livingston, Sanpete county.
ALTERNATES.
 A. R. Haywood, Weber county.
 John C. McClain, Salt Lake county.
 Thomas Sevey, Garfield county.
 Preston D. Richards, Salt Lake county.
 Mrs. Lucy A. Clark, Boxelder county.
 Mrs. Susa Young Gates, Salt Lake county.
 Instructions were issued through the platform that the convention favored Roosevelt first and Taft second, as presidential candidates.

It took the delegates to the Republican convention which assembled in the Salt Lake theater for two sessions yesterday, just a little less than one hour to transact the actual business of naming six men to ballot for the next Republican presidential candidate.

Proceeding this business hour, however, the large body of delegates participated as listeners or speakers in a tumultuous debate over the adoption of resolutions introduced by D. O. Ridout, calling for the selection of U. S. senators by nomination in convention, instead of selection by the legislature. While the resolution was not attacked by any speakers, except that it was a matter to be considered in the next convention instead of this one, it was voted down almost unanimously after its friends had finished their speeches.

The convention was noticeable for the heat with which interruptions and rebuffs passed back and forth. Debate on the Ridout resolution began as soon as the platform had been adopted and did not close until Chairman Houtz warned the delegates that the theater must be vacated within an hour.

This started the trend of activity toward the actual business of choosing delegates and debate was stopped by a standing vote on the resolution which showed it to have but few supporters. Master of Ceremonies took the floor to nominate the congressional delegation at the request of the chairman he named them individually, and their names were announced as individual candidates. From among the delegates speakers arose who nominated W. D. Livingston of Sanpete, Dr. C. M. Wilson, mayor of Park City, A. R. Haywood of Ogden, Thomas Sevey of Panguitch, John C. McClain of Salt Lake, and Ed Looze of Provo.

The roll call of counties showed Senator Smoot, Senator Sutherland, Representative Joseph Howell, Mr. Livingston, Mr. Looze, and Mr. Wilson to be elected. The votes received by each are shown in the following table:

Following the announcement of the vote Mr. Sevy, Mr. McClain, and Mr. Haywood were named as alternates by acclamation. Brigham Clegg then nominated Mrs. Lucy A. Clark of Boxelder county, a woman delegate nominated Mrs. Susa Y. Gates of Sevier. B. Squires named Preston D. Richards, and John M. Hayes was named from the floor. A ballot resulted in Mrs. Clark receiving 411 votes, Mrs. Gates 272, Mr. Richards 418, and Mr. Hayes 259. The first three were declared elected.

DEBATE ON RESOLUTION.

Debate on the Ridout resolution, which was the feature of the afternoon session, began with the introduction of that resolution and a voice from the floor "Read it yourself," when he requested that the secretary read it to the convention.

Harry Joseph moved that all resolutions be read to the resolutions committee, but this motion failed to prevail after a lively tilt, from volunteered remarks within the delegations, one waiting to receive recognition.

Three viva-voce votes failed to convince the chairman of the proper way to decide the question and a standing vote was likewise indecisive. This resulted in a roll call vote during the progress of which Joseph withdrew his motion.

Mr. Ridout spoke amid frequent interruptions, declaring that the Republican party in this country was in jeopardy and that it needed the moral effect of the votes next November that this resolution would give it.

"Gentlemen," he declared, "there exists in the hearts of the American people a sentiment against the union of church and state, and why? The bloodiest pages of history, darkest prison walls, the martyr upon the rack, and the victim burning at the stake, speak loud against even a semblance of the union of church and state."

"If I wanted to listen to a sermon," was the comment from Jake Greenwald, "I would go to the Congregational church next Sunday and listen to Rev. Groden. I would like to have the speaker confine himself to the subject."

Mr. Ridout from this point on was so frequently interrupted that Chairman Houtz stopped the proceedings and said: "I will ask you, gentlemen, even though what the speaker may say does not entertain or please you, to give a respectful audience to the gentleman."

William Glasmann got the floor after Mr. Ridout concluded, and pointed out his belief that the resolution might do some good "if, as I am lead to believe from the speaker's remarks, it would bring back the 11-000 voters the Republican party had in Salt Lake county a couple of years ago. If that resolution will abandon the 'American' party and bring back the old Republican voters, am willing to vote for that resolution."

"But my friends the privilege to vote for a United States senator in a Republican convention will not bring back the Republicans who have left the party in Salt Lake City. They want that senatorship themselves."

"I am not to be frightened because one of the dominant forces which has sought for and won a high office, and has fairly won it from the Republican party."

James Devine arose on a point of order to declare that the gentleman was not speaking to the question of the resolution, but he was overruled, and Mr. Glasmann continued, declaring that he favored the utmost fairness in the Republican party.

A. B. Irvine secured the floor for a much interrupted speech, in which he finally succeeded in making it clear that the resolution was not intended to concern itself with candidates for office, but with a method of electing U. S. senators.

"Don't let the free speech," he said, "Remember that the Republican party was conceived as a protest against tyranny. Remember that the Republican party was born of free speech and liberty of thought. Remember, gentlemen, that the principles of the Republican party have been sanctified by the blood of martyrs, and that its whole history, from the beginning, is a history of liberty, of harmony and of justice. Remember, gentlemen, that a vote for this resolution does not mean a vote against Reed Smoot. Don't let these gentlemen sidetrack you."

Questions were fired in from all parts of the house, and during some time to answer them. Finally James Devine secured the floor after several attempts had been made to move the previous question. He spoke in favor of the resolution. He traced the history of public sentiment in the Republican party towards electing senators by people instead of by the legislature, and instances cases where Utah legislatures had petitioned Congress and where the national house of representatives had passed proposed amendments to this effect.

Mr. Greenwald spoke next to declare that he wanted the chair to recognize him next time an opportunity was offered as he had been on his feet for 15 consecutive times without being recognized.

Alma Eldredge, however, was the successful one among a dozen who clamored for recognition. He recalled the fact that he made the motion on which the old People's party dissolved and the people of Utah organized on national party lines. He declared that Thomas Kearns purchased his seat in the United States senate, and advocated from this, the adoption of the resolution.

An announcement at this point in the debate from Chairman Houtz called attention to the fact that it was 5 o'clock and that the theater must be vacated by 6 o'clock according to the contract.

This brought a motion from E. C. Callister to the effect that a vote be taken on the resolution. He said, "I believe this resolution has any business before this convention," he said. We have heard Mr. Irvine, Mr. Devine, Mr. Eldredge and Mr. Ridout, and we have heard their side of the question and I now move the previous question.

A vote was taken and the motion carried, and on the resolution a standing vote was taken, almost all of the delegates being opposed to it. Immediately afterwards the business of nominating delegates for the convention was commenced and when this work was completed at 6:15 the convention adjourned.

REPUBLICAN PLATFORM.

Delegates Adopt Expressions on National Party Policies for Campaign.

The platform was brought in by Hon. A. L. Thomas, chairman of the committee at 2:15 p. m. His first announcement was that a motion had prevailed that the platform be confined to national issues, and that after this motion was adopted, the following had been prepared:

First—We remind them that 43 years have passed since the Civil war was brought to its close, and close under the magnificent leadership of Abraham Lincoln, the first Republican president; that during these 43 momentous years, the affairs of our government have been administered under legislation originated and enacted by the Republican party; that as a result of this administration, our country stands today in the volume of its domestic and foreign business and commerce, in the amount of wealth diffused among the people and deposited in savings banks, in the number of homes owned by its citizens, in the number, character and condition of its public schools and beneficial public institutions, and other substantial evidences of a progressive and enlightened civilization, and in the point of political prestige at home and abroad, the first and foremost among the nations of the earth.

The people of Utah have enjoyed their full share of this great national prosperity and progress. Prudence, wisdom and moderation, therefore, suggest that Utah should hold fast to its place in the Republican column.

Second—that the people of Utah, vitally interested in lead, wool, sugar, stock and other industries, have been in the past, are now, and will continue to be in favor of the good old American doctrine of a tariff for the protection of home labor and industries until the necessity thereof shall cease and all danger of foreign competition shall have passed. We believe in keeping the American market for Americans only, and demand that when a revision of the tariff becomes necessary it shall be made, if made at all, by the friends and not the enemies of a protective tariff. Utah has prospered under a protective tariff.

Third—We rejoice that because of the brilliant and aggressive policy of President Roosevelt, the desire of the American people of many years for a water highway between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans will soon be gratified, and deplore the unpatriotic and unnecessary fact that when the Panama canal shall be opened, unless needed legislation shall be enacted, the vessels carrying the world's commerce, which may pass through its gates with a few solitary exceptions, will have at their masthead a foreign flag. We declare in favor of a res flag, our old-time prestige when the American merchant marine, excelled by none, was the glory of the seas, and favor legislation to that end.

Fourth—We declare in favor of a greater navy and for the building of four or more battleships annually. We are proud of the great fleet, representing the mastery of the seas, and the peaceful resting in the harbor of San Francisco, and applaud our president for planning the remarkable cruise which has awakened national enthusiasm and excited the admiration of mankind. We congratulate the citizens of Salt Lake City and Utah upon the splendid and patriotic part they are playing in the magnificent welcome given to the fleet by the city of San Francisco.

CONVENTION ENDS WORK.

Utah Federation of Labor Makes Two Significant Departures.

The Utah Federation of Labor closed its two days' convention at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The two sessions of the day, commencing at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m., respectively, were given over to discussion of subjects looking to a betterment of the organization and accrued benefit to its members. Two distinct and new features adopted were those of seeking co-operation with ecclesiastical bodies and putting under the ban secret gatherings of the society. Ministers and church speakers will be asked not to occasionally deliver public addresses designed to help the cause of labor, but to become affiliated with the federation and be represented in its councils. The open meeting proposition is an entirely new departure for labor circles, and the innovation will doubtless gain friends for the cause.

MEET NEXT IN OGDEN.

The federation went on record as being in favor of the bill now pending before Congress, providing for eight hours' labor for postoffice employees and relief of other government forces. The next convention of the federation will be held at Ogden. The principal resolution passed yesterday was presented by Delegate Dennett, and was as follows:

Whereas, It is apparent from newspaper and other reports that the public in general is of the opinion that organized labor is opposed to affiliation and co-operation with ministerial associations and organizations seeking higher civilization and betterment of conditions for all men, especially those who toil; and whereas, such statements and impressions are in direct variance with facts; be it

Resolved, That the Utah State Federation of Labor, in convention assembled, points with pride to its affiliation with the Ogden Ministerial association and recommends to all central bodies the desirability of action looking to representation of ministerial associations through accredited delegates. Be it further

Resolved, That we invite and request that all ministerial associations throughout our jurisdiction send representatives to our regular semi-annual and other conventions. And be it further

Resolved, That our secretary be instructed to send a copy of these resolutions to the Salt Lake City federation and the Ogden Trades and Labor assembly and ministerial associations throughout the state.

Other resolutions were introduced concerning thorough and competent inspection of buildings where electrical wiring is done, in order to prevent danger from fire through the work of incompetent or inefficient employees.

The bill of Representative Melchert of Illinois, introduced in the house of representatives Jan. 4, and proposing to regulate the hours of clerks in the postoffice department, was supported in a resolution, as was also the bill introduced in the senate by Mr. La Follette, which considered the promotion of letter carriers.

The equipment is of the most modern type throughout and a visit will be interesting. All residents of the city are invited to come at any time between the hours named.

COUNCIL AT CLARK FUNERAL.

Resolutions of Respect Passed at Special Meeting Last Night.

At a special meeting of the city council last evening, resolutions were adopted by that body upon the death of former Mayor John Clark, and arrangements were made for the members, with acting Mayor A. J. Davis, to attend the funeral in a body. A suitable floral design will be contributed by the city officials. The resolutions presented by Mr. Fernstrom, were as follows:

"Whereas, In the providence of the Almighty Ruler of the destinies of mankind, Hon. John Clark has been called away suddenly by death from this sphere of action; and

"Whereas, The deceased was one of the early settlers of this community to whose industrious toil and intelligent efforts it owes its existence and present prospects; and also a capable and faithful public servant in whatever position he was placed by his fellow citizens; as well as a loyal citizen, a successful business man and a faithful husband, a loving father and a true friend, whose departure is a loss to the community; therefore be it

Resolved, That we, the members of the city council of Salt Lake City, express our appreciation and the appreciation of the entire community, of the moral worth and the distinguished services of the departed citizen for many years a member of the council and the chief executive of the city; be it further,

"Resolved, That we tender our deepest sympathy to the people and to the family and friends of the deceased in their bereavement and sorrow. Be it also
